Rezoning riles Ecorse subdivision residents

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Several hostile residents faced Romulus city council members Monday night, demanding denial of the rezoning request of a local developer.

The meeting was punctuated with frequent exchanges between council members and members of the audience, many of whom are residents in the Ecorse subdivision, just north of the airport between Merriman and Middlebelt roads.

Developer Wendall Flynn, owner of Airlines Parking located on the west end of the Ecorse subdivision, has purchased several lots in the adjacent neighborhood for the expansion of his parking business.

He said at the last council meeting that he owns 60 percent of the property on one block. As Flynn acquired each parcel, he demolished the homes and after several city citations, he finally cleared the land. According to city attorney Barry Seifman, litigation against Flynn by the city is still pending.

In March, after Flynn accumulated all the land directly east of his property, he fenced it. This was in direct opposition to city ordinances and local residents' wishes.

At the council meeting two weeks ago, Flynn requested a rezoning of that property as well as a request to temporarily park cars during the holidays on additional land he has purchased outside the fenced in area.

Per the city charter, rezoning requests must be approved by councilmembers twice. Two weeks ago, they unanimously approved the rezoning and the request for temporary parking. But two days later, Mayor Beverly McNally vetoed the request for temporary parking. This was the first time since 1974, a Romulus mayor has vetoed the actions of council members.

After lengthy discussion Monday, the rezoning was denied.

Council members Ellis Pennington, Randolph Gear, Jimmie Raspberry and Pete Bergeron voted in favor of the rezoning. Only councilmen Alan Lambert and Bill Wadsworth voted no. With the absence of council member Mary Ann Banks, the necessary two-thirds majority vote necessary for approval of the rezoning was not achieved.

"There's just no way I vote for this rezoning. I've been in that neighborhood many times. I'll never vote for it," said Lambert adamantly.

"We can no longer tolerate these types of actions. From now on, let's do it right Mr. Flynn, and pull the necessary permits," said Wadsworth.

One resident said it's been almost a year since Flynn erected the fence. "We called the city when the fence posts were dug, when the fence was installed and when the gates were in place. You wouldn't have wasted all this time on me. I'd be in jail," he said.

Residents said they don't want the area zoning changed. According to city clerk Linda Choate, the land was zoned from residential to business transitional more than 10 years ago. The current request for rezoning would be from business (See RESIDENTS, page 3)

Police plan to slow speeders

Traffic problems along the I-94 freeway in Romulus and Taylor have prompted police chiefs from those two cities to take strong action to protect motorists.

Last Tuesday, Police Chief Charles Wilmoth of Romulus and Chief Thomas Bonner of Taylor joined forces and announced the creation of a new "I-94 Special Interagency Enforcement Team."

"We have devised a joint plan to address widespread complaints of excessive speeding by cars and trucks coupled with careless driving, improper lane changes and other hazardous violations," said Wilmoth.

Commanders from the Ypsilanti, Northville and Flat Rock Michigan State Police posts also assisted in the development of the enforcement team.

Each team consists of six cars, one from each post plus a motor carrier enforcement officer from the state police. They will be deployed several times a week to patrol the 10-mile stretch of freeway especially during high volume time periods.

"This stretch of freeway is way above normal in the number of accidents and serious injuries. Recent surveys show the average speed to be between 68 and 71 miles per hour," said Lt. Dave Early of the Romulus Police Department.

"We have identified an obvious problem. We can't divorce ourselves from this stretch of highway. We feel we can do a better job by cooperating with each other. The program was only initiated a week ago, and already we can see the impact in terms of accidents and property damage," said Wilmoth.

The state police report that more than 90 percent of the traffic along this segment of highway exceeds the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit. And with large commercial trucks accounting for 15 percent of this traffic, "the potential for serious accidents is high."

"The new 65 mph rural interstate speed limit does not affect I-94 in Taylor or Romulus," stressed Wilmoth, group spokesperson. "And in fact, I-94 remains at a 55 mph speed limit from Detroit all the way to the other side of Ann Arbor," he added.

Many people believe the state police patrol this road, but they don't, Early noted. "The state police patrol Detroit area freeways but this stretch hasn't ever been regularly patrolled," he said.

Early noted that seven fatal accidents occurred on that stretch since 1984. There were two fatal accidents in 1986 and none so far this year.

During the first three months of 1987, 150 accidents occurred between Hannan and Wayne roads on eastbound I-94 and 217 in the westbound lanes. Between Merriman and Middlebelt roads along I-94, 175 accidents occurred in the eastbound and 210 accidents in the westbound lanes.

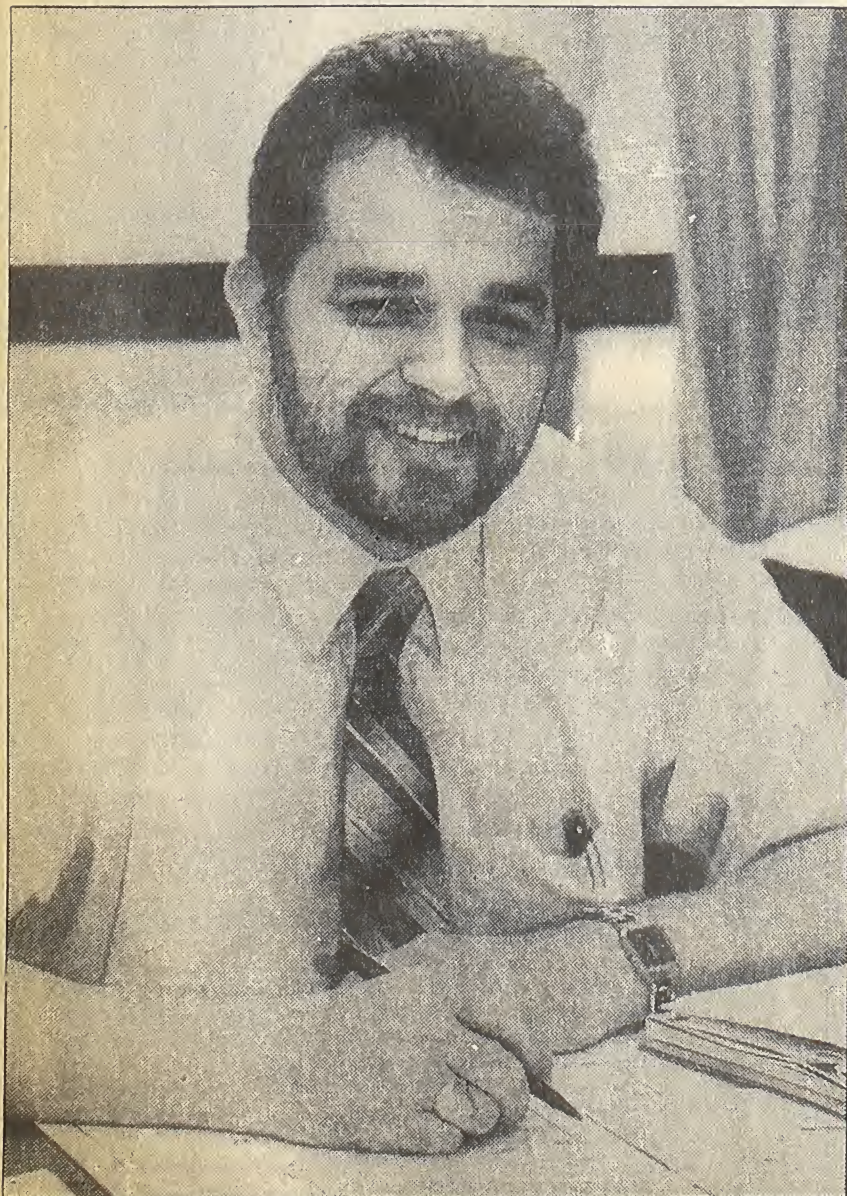

"The accident rate in Romulus along I-94 is double the rate throughout the state," Wilmoth noted.

Traffic volume on I-94 between Wayne Road and the I-275 freeway counts 61,000 vehicles traveling both ways. At the other end of the enforcement area, 96,000 vehicles cross Telegraph, according to Early.

The greatest traffic volume occurs between 6 and 9 a.m. and 2 and 8 p.m. These are the hours the enforcement team will be patrolling, he added.

"We will not be cutting down patrols or police enforcement elsewhere in the city. Local staffing will be maintained. We can't expect the state or county to take care of all our problems," Wilmoth said.

Napiorkowski is finally sworn in as Romulus treasurer

After a hectic day of counting and recounting by Wayne County officials, James Napiorkowski is now the official treasurer of the city of Romulus.

Former Treasurer John Lewkowicz had lost to Napiorkowski in the general election Nov. 3 by a total of 67 votes and requested a recount. He lost again.

Last Tuesday, a team from the Wayne County Board of Canvassers arrived at city hall about 8 a.m. and remained there until each vote from the 20 city precincts was counted.

"All the numbers stayed exactly the same," said Wayne County Clerk James Killeen. The total count remained at 1,397 votes for Napiorkowski and 1,333 votes for Lewkowicz.

At 4:15 p.m., Napiorkowski was officially sworn into office.

City Clerk Linda Choate noted, "We were even. They didn't find one different vote."

She commended her excellent staff of elections workers. "They did a great job. Sometimes they get upset. We go over the same stuff each election for this very same reason. When we need it, it pays off. Lewkowicz didn't pick up one single vote," she said.

Choate was responsible for gathering the paperwork for the 11-member team from the county. Each candidate was allowed a maximum of six peo-

Newcomer challenged by first few days in office

The new Romulus City Treasurer Jim Napiorkowski, 36, leaned back in a chair he's not too familiar with and smiled.

Finally, after months of campaigning, the strategy Napiorkowski mapped out evidently worked. He now occupies one of the most important offices of the city.

The battle was hard-fought and prompted a great deal of controversy. Napiorkowski said he intends to avoid those problems by working with other department heads and following the city charter.

"It's nice to be here," he said. "I was officially sworn in at 4:15 p.m. last Tuesday. I'm making arrangements with the banks. Making sure they have my signature. Basically, I'm just getting familiar with the daily routine. I'll take a few days. Right now, it's too early to tell," he said.

Napiorkowski did concede he's correcting a few mistakes left behind by former treasurer John Lewkowicz but at the present they appear to be minor and all in all, he said, "no big problem has confronted me yet."

His first task, he said, is to implement the computer program in the treasurer's office. "The one in my office still had the wrappings on it," he said.

Wayne County officials will be sent a letter outlining penalty rates for delinquent taxes. This action is necessary because, he said, the former treasurer used an inefficient verbal procedure which resulted in much past confusion.

"The problem with verbal procedures again surfaced mental pride.

Killeen agreed. "We are always pleased when the state election laws are followed. Since this was the clerk's first experience with a recount, it shows she really did pay attention. Few counties of this size across the country can boast of elections with this type of integrity. We're pleased," he said.

The cost of the recount is charged to the challenger, in this case, Lewkowicz who pays $10 per precinct. The city however, was required to pay a weekly salary to Lewkowicz from the date other newly elected officials were sworn in on Monday, Nov. 9 until last Tuesday.

Monday night at a meeting with the city auditors. We've got to have important procedures in writing. I'm going to take one item at a time. I'm going to watch procedures and make some small changes," Napiorkowski said.

On the other hand, Lewkowicz, 69, said he hasn't really thought about what he'll do now that he's out of office. However, he assured fellow citizens and supporters, "I will be active and I'm still interested in doing what's best for the city of Romulus. I've always tried to do my best."

Enjoying Good Health

Dr. Hopkins is Chief of the Department of Family Practice at Oakwood Hospital, and maintains a private practice in Family Practice Medicine in Dearborn.

GET THE LOW DOWN, PUT THE SQUEEZE ON HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

By Andrew J. Hopkins, M.D.

You are feeling fine. You have no health problems you know of, although it's been years since you've had a check up. If this scenario fits you, beware.

One of the most dangerous diseases, high blood pressure, all too frequently goes undetected and untreated because it has no symptoms. That's why it's called the "silent killer." More than 58,000,000 Americans have high blood pressure, and a great percentage don't even know it. Without warning, it can cause heart attack, stroke, and kidney damage. And it can strike at any time.

HIGH RISK

Those at high risk include people who are overweight, the elderly, black Americans, pregnant women, and those who have a family history of high blood pressure. Other factors include diabetes, stress, and diet. Or, high blood pressure can occur independently.

TREATABLE AND CURABLE

The good news is high blood pressure is detectable, treatable, even curable. Detection is the key. Have your blood pressure checked annually by your physician, at work, or at a health screening such as Health-O-Rama. Oakwood Health Information, located in the Fairlane Town Center, offers free screening every Tuesday and Thursday. The limit of normal high blood pressure is 140/90. If it's high, confirm it with your doctor. Further testing may be necessary to determine cause, complications, or as a guide for therapy.

DIET AND EXERCISE

Many times it can be treated or cured through nondrug therapy alone. Weight loss for the obese, decreased saturated fat intake, less salt, regular aerobic exercise, reduction of stress, and moderation of alcohol may be all that is necessary.

TREATMENT IS TAILORED

The number of medications to control blood pressure is extensive and still growing. Treatment can be tailored to each individual, changed, or altered according to a person's needs as determined by the physician. Occasionally, medication may be stopped altogether.

THE STORY ABOUT Dawn Wright, 16, of Romulus which appeared in the Nov. 25 issue of the Romulus Roman incorrectly stated that Wright received a new kidney when in reality, doctors transplanted a new liver. It stated she was 14 instead of 16 years old and that she had her gall bladder removed when she didn't. Wright is recovering slowly and doing fine after two liver transplants at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. For the record, Dawn's name was spelled correctly and she was appropriately identified in the photo which accompanied the article.

IN ANOTHER STORY about Darius Varner who fought a battle against cancer last year at the age of 16 and won, it was mentioned he was a deer hunter who came home empty handed on opening day. That's true. The remainder of the story unfolded later, according to his mother Pearl Varner, Romulus Historical Society president. "Darius did get his buck," she said.

GOVERNMENT CHEESE AND other stable items will be distributed to qualified families in the city of Romulus from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10 in the Coleman Center, 35351 Beverly Road, east of Wayne Road. For information call 721-5655.

FORMER BASKETBALL STAR Juan Street, Romulus High School class of 1987, made his debut on the varsity team of Bowling Green University in Ohio this fall. This past Wednesday, he scored 2 points and played 11 minutes in his second game against the University of Michigan. However, the team lost 71 points to 92. His mother, Debbie Street, a Romulus music teacher explained this was her son's second appearance on the team. "He is just excited that he is able to play." Street was a key figure on his high school team in 1986 when they earned the state championship title. The 6-foot, 5-inch former Eagle is evidently exhibiting that same talent with his new teammates at Bowling Green.

THE SECRET PAL Unveiling and Ceramists Pot Luck Luncheon will be hosted at noon, Monday, Dec. 14 in the Romulus Senior Center on Bibbins at the corner of Shook Road. Gifts valued under $5 will exchanged afterwards. For information call 942-6852.

THE MAYOR IS a grandmother for the first time. On Nov. 4, 1987 Mayor Beverly McAnally's youngest daughter, Patrice, delivered a healthy 8 1/2 pound baby boy, named Zachary Cole. Steve Boyer is the proud father. McAnally traveled to her daughter's home in Trabuca Canyon, Cal., last week where she saw her bouncing grandson for the first time. She noted, "I don't mean to hurt anybody's feelings, but this little guy is the most beautiful, smartest and best-natured fellow I know."

THE CITY OF Romulus will host the annual city, business and industry Christmas party from 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17 at the Romulus Holiday Inn on Wickham Road, just north of the airport. The event, "Celebrating the Holiday Season and Sharing our Achievements," is sponsored by the city of Romulus, the Economic Development Corporation, Chamber of Commerce and the Festival Committee. For information call 941-5710.

A CHRISTMAS DANCE will be sponsored from 7 to 11 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 12 in the Romulus High School gym on Wayne Road, north of the I-94 freeway by members of the National Honor Society. Lance Knudson, Romulus High School science department chairman and honor society advisor, said the dance gives these honor students the opportunity to get involved in their community. Students from the ninth through 12th grades are invited. The cost is $3 per individual and $5 per couple. He noted these are the same honor students who man the concession stand during the football season and who provide daily tutoring for fellow students. For information call 941-2170.

THE ROMULUS GOODFELLOWS collected the most money ever this past weekend during their annual Christmas fund drive. Ofc. John Smagner, of the Romulus Police Department and chairperson of the Goodfellows, said between 30 and 40 people stood on local street corners Friday and Saturday and collected $6,200. Last Christmas season, the organization assisted 150 local families with a food and gift basket. This year, volunteers will deliver these goodies on the weekend of the 18th. "Requests are still pouring in and We will only accept nominations for needy families until this Friday," Smagner said. For information call 942-6852.

A group effort

Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks of Romulus, left, joined forces with Little Caesar's media coordinator Frank Ruggirello, store manager Jody Howey and WLLZ promotional assistant Dan Koti in their third annual "Wheels for Meals" canned food drive. Last year, the group effort collected more than 26 tons of food and provided at least 52,000 meals to hungry residents in the metro area. Romulus High School students will also be in the community collecting cans for the drive. The Little Caesars Restaurant on Wayne Road will collect the cans from local residents and at the same time, provide a slice of pizza and a small soft drink for only 99 cents. The newly opened store is located at 9319 Wayne, south of Wick Road. For information call 4787-6200.

One of the most successful and highly visible new programs at Romulus High School is the "student of the month" program, according to assistant principal, Dan Hurst.

"A variety of new programs were initiated at Romulus High School this year that would instill high academic and behavioral expectations in our students," said Hurst.

As part of the program, each month, teachers select students who have excelled in their respective classes. These students will receive positive recognition in the school via monthly award ceremonies, picture displays and articles in the local and school newspapers. Through luck of the draw, selected students will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond, donated by local sponsors.

"This type of community support enhances our program by supporting a positive learning environment and reinforcing high expectations for our students," Hurst said.

Students who received the $50 bond are: Michael Baber, from Romulus Rotary Club, Laura Biro, from Metro Maintenance, Jacquelyn Devoe, McDonald's on Wayne Road, Eugene Haney, from Roxy's Lounge, Kimberly Hopewell, from Crova GMC Trucks, Inc., Philip Kraft, from Romulus

Kiwanis, Lori McLean, from Ted's Supermarket, Colleen McQuiston, from Header Products, Michele Scarrow, from Daly Drive-In, Laurie Stewart, from Romulus Kiwanis and Michael Walton, Lear Sigler Inc.

transitional to regional center.

Earlier this year, the city asked residents to respond to a questionnaire about the future of their neighborhood. Among other things, they were offered the option of forming a corporation to band together and deal with developers, not only Flynn.

City officials including McAnally said the survey results offered no clear picture of what local residents want. Some want to stay, others are willing to sell and many are undecided.

Gloria Branham, local property owner and resident told her fellow neighbors, "Don't sell your land as residential because that's not what they want it for. Sell it like you would commercial property, by the square foot."

Lora, her daughter, also a resident and homeowner was very vocal during the meeting. "I was born and raised in this neighborhood. I own 66 percent of the land on one side of Burton Road. Does that mean I can do whatever I want?"

"I don't want to be forced out by Mr. Flynn. He's laughing in your face and at your laws. We've learned from past experience, this man does not need permission. Can we ask exactly what is going on here. I like this neighborhood. Are you pulling a fast one on us? As I understand it, city council is supposed to represent us," she said.

Many neighbors agreed. The area is heavily wooded and characterized by small homes on large lots. Most families have lived there many years. They are a close-knit community and many are related, according to residents.

Flynn told councilmembers at the last meeting he owned all the land on both sides of Hudson Street except for two parcels. A handful of local owners were quite surprised by his claim.

"There are at least four or five residents still living on Hudson Street. I live there and I own my house free and clear," said one 77-year old resident.

Raspberry explained to residents concerned about the city or anybody taking their land. "No one else but the city can condemn your property. As it stands, the area is a non-conforming use. The area was in the flight pattern. That's the reason it was changed to business transitional," he said.

"Because the city changes the zoning in an area, doesn't mean we can make you move out," added Bergeron.

Another resident said he attended the planning commission meeting asked about the future development in her neighborhood.

"Is this rezoning approval just to legalize what Flynn has already illegally done?" they asked.

Pennington reassured residents, "The action we take tonight does not nullify his violations of the past."

"Just because he says he owns 60 percent of the land, does that mean he can rezone the property around my house and build up to my door?" asked a resident.

According to McAnally, the rezoning denial can be reconsidered at the next council meeting. "Still, it was good residents had a victory," she said.

Flynn, who was present at the meeting, made no comment or response to the issues discussed by residents.

School programs promote seasonal spirit

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas in Romulus. Festive lights decorate local homes, and last Friday, Santa arrived to light the official Christmas tree.

But the most notable sign of Christmas in Romulus is without dispute the annual school Christmas programs.

At Barth, Halecreek, Merriman, Hayti, Cory, Wick and St. Aloysius schools, Christmas festivities are in full swing. Special pageants, programs, events and activities have been planned all in the spirit of Christmas.

Hayti Elementary students organized a special Christmas program called "Santa's Frosty Follies." Barth students will visit Hayti on Monday, Dec. 14 to participate and attend the performance.

The show will be taken on the road at 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 15 to Halecreek and then at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 16 to the Romulus High School auditorium. Gideon Pettway and Richard Kruse are organizing the vocal and instrumental segments of the program.

Debbie Street, Merriman music teacher organized a new program called, "Winter Holiday." "We've been practicing for almost three weeks. The first graders will sing Jingle Bells, the second graders, Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer and the third and fourth graders, Silent Night. The fifth and sixth graders will also perform. The kids are just bubbling with excitement," Street said.

Merriman students will perform at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 15 in Barth School auditorium. When Santa arrived Friday, he found Romulus residents so hospitable, he decided to set up shop in several local schools. However, no city council approval was required. "Santa's Secret Shop" is sponsored by the school parent-teacher organizations.

Merriman, Halecreek and Hayti schools noted success with their shop where school children could buy Christmas presents priced from five cents to five dollars. Items such as coffee mugs, ceramics, crafts and many low priced items are available, according to Bill Smith, Barth principal.

At Barth, the shop will be open during school hours from Wednesday, Dec. 9 to Friday, Dec. 11. The shop is open at Cory on Dec. 14, 15 and 16.

"We're even trying to schedule a visit from Santa," added Smith.

Mitten trimming

Mayor Beverly McAnally and Susan Watts add a few more pairs of mittens to the Goodfellow sponsored tree in city hall. The tree is trimmed with mittens which will be donated to needy children before Christmas. The public is invited to help with the project by bringing mittens to city hall for the tree.

3 bodies found in Westland during week

WESTLAND – The deaths of three Westland residents are under investigation by police officials.

On Dec. 5, the bodies of Rita Loper, 72, and her son, Gregory, were found in their townhouse located in the Holliday Park complex, just east of Wayne Road.

A neighbor discovered the bodies, according to police reports of the incident.

Police investigators found no visible signs of forced entry and no evidence of robbery at the scene of the deaths. Officers said they will know more about the circumstances of the deaths when results of the Wayne County Medical Examiner's report are available.

In a separate incident, another investigation is being conducted after the body of a third Westland resident was discovered late Sunday night.

Police said the body of 34-year-old Earl Ford was found in his home at 28924 McDonald street.

Lt. Michael Frayer of the Westland Detective Bureau said Ford died of multiple gunshot wounds and that police have no suspects or leads in the fatal shooting at this time.

Jail: County tax cuts feared by police officials

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

Police officials and judges from the area aren't happy this week, after learning of Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's plan to close one floor of the Wayne County jail. In fact, the officials are so outraged they would support a privately owned jail to house local criminals.

Last week, McNamara ordered $12 million in cuts to balance his $200 million budget. The closing of the jail floor is among several of the other services slated to be cut.

The jail floor closing will eliminate 21 sheriff's deputies positions, along with reducing the jail capacity by 128 inmates, from the current 1,676 to 1,548 later on this month, McNamara said.

By doing this, McNamara has said the county will be saving $895,000. Local law enforcement officials, however, contend that the action will only increase the current problem of overcrowded jail cells.

Judge Carolyn Archbold, of the 29th District Court in Wayne, said she was "appalled" at the county executive's decision to close one floor of the jail.

"We haven't had jail space since October of 1986. There's been no space for misdemeanants. I would hope that the county will find another way to save money. We're already letting criminals out on the streets because there isn't enough room to keep them in prison," said Archbold. "We either need more beds, or we have to find another way to punish criminals."

Archbold added that, as a judge, she often finds herself in a compromising situation when it comes to sentencing convicted criminals.

"My hands are tied when I ask (defendants) whether they'd want to pay a fine or do time. Most likely, they'll say they want to do the time, since they know darn well that the jails are so overcrowded. And, besides that, I have to get the final OK to put them behind bars," said Archbold.

Archbold didn't know of another way county officials could alleviate their financial problems. But, she said, one idea to solve the jail overcrowding space locally would be to construct a privately owned jail.

"I have suggested that perhaps we could initiate the formation of a consortium of cities which could possibly get a private facility build," Archbold said.

Cities participation in the consortium would be able to use the facility for inmates convicted in those areas, she explained.

"We need to either have more beds, or we have to find another way to meet punishments. Felons are even being turned loose because of a lack of space," Archbold said.

Wayne Director of Public Safety Ray LeCornu agreed.

"Every bed being removed (at the county jail because of budget cuts) adds to the existing problem. We're already overcrowding," said LeCornu.

He added that the safety of society is in jeopardy when such an action is put into effect.

"Society needs to be kept safe. It will just deteriorate if criminals are allowed to walk the streets. There's got to be someplace to put the criminals," LeCornu explained.

As for the idea of a privately owned jail in the area, LeCornu said he would support any idea that would keep criminals off of the city streets.

"I'm not turned off by that idea. Any way that we can get criminals off the streets, whether private or public, needs to be implicated. I don't think that citizens will be standing for this problem too long," LeCornu said.

"There needs to be a certainty of punishment for these criminals. We may end up having to foot some of the bills to keep criminals behind the bars, but it needs to be done," he continued.

Hospital authority implements new emergency room proposal

The establishment of an on-call panel of specialty physicians at the five Peoples Community Hospital Authority hospitals was approved by board members at their monthly meeting Thursday.

The group of physicians will be under contract with the hospital authority to provide emergency medical services on an on-call basis in their fields of specialty, including internal medicine, OB/GYN, surgery and orthopedic surgery, according to Maureen Camps, community relations director for the PCHA. Before such a group existed, Camps said, PCHA emergency room officials had to rely on a list of specialty physicians who would provide emergency services on a voluntary basis.

"This will create a group of doctors in the various specialties who will be on call for the emergency room physicians. Now, we can call in physicians who are on staff, but it's more or less just a list of physicians," Camps said. "This will create a list of physicians who will be on contract to be on call."

The 31 board members at the meeting unanimously approved the proposal, which became effective immediately.

In other action:

- Board members authorized PCHA administrators to advertise the sale of a 17-acre and 51-acre parcel of land in Canton Township. The land, located on Lilley Road, north of Michigan Avenue, was donated to the authority more than 20 years ago, Camps said, for possible future expansion.

The board action, Camps continued, was not the result of an inquiry about the sale of the land but is an effort by PCHA officials to dispose of unneeded property.

- A moratorium on the medical malpractice coverage once required by all 600 of the physicians working with the PCHA was extended by the board members. Members voted in 1984 to require all PCHA physicians to possess a minimum $100,000 per-occurrence medical malpractice insurance policy and $300,000 aggregate policy, Camps said.

However, due to "a crisis with malpractice insurance" and complaints from physicians, the requirement was suspended in October 1986. The Thursday action clarifies this suspension, Camps said.

- No action on the pending reorganization of the PCHA was taken at the meeting. PCHA board members last month voted to enter into negotiations for the authority to become affiliated with a tertiary medical, health care or educational facility.

Parks: Tax cuts threaten improvements to area parks

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Problems have plagued Edward Hines Park during the past few years. An increase in crime in the area and reported drug activities damaged the image of the 42-mile-long park.

In 1987, the park showed signs of re-establishing a family image, due primarily to the efforts of the Hines Park Task Force. Recent cutbacks in the 1988 budget haven't dampened the hopes of the primary objectives of members of the task force. "We want to keep a positive image for the park," said Robert Ficano, Wayne County sheriff. "We had a good year in 1987. The park permit requests were up and we had a good year from the law enforcement side as well."

The task force, which was re-established in 1983, is under the direction of Ficano and Eric Reicker, Wayne County Parks and Recreation Department director.

The committee includes law enforcement representatives from the communities which boarder the park as well as mayors, councilmen and private citizens.

"There was a task force prior to 1981 but it was dismantled due to cutbacks during the Lucas administration," said Nancy Moradian of the Wayne County Sheriff's department.

"The primary goal of the task force is to coordinate efforts to return Hines Park to what it was supposed to be."

"The image of the park was not good in the early 80s due to crime and drug activity within the park. The task force is trying to return the park to the families."

The task force, which meets three or four times per year, staged a Nov. 17 meeting to discuss the successes and failures of the past year and to look at the future of Hines Park.

"We had a very good and productive meeting," said Ficano. "But due a decrease in state funds we will have to make some cutbacks."

The park patrol has been marked for cutbacks and the mounted division has already been cut from eight to five officers, according to Moradian.

On Nov. 19, Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara announced that the county would refuse a state grant of $364,165 because of the "dire fiscal condition" of the county.

"It's a shame that the county cannot take advantage of available resources to improve the county parks," stated McNamara. "But it is impossible at this time for the county to raise the necessary money to match this grant. Therefore, we have no choice but to refuse it."

The grant, offered by the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund, requires matching funds by the county totalling $91,042.

Ficano said the Hines Park meeting was very productive and he stressed the importance of a "family oriented" park.

"We want to keep a positive image for Hines Park," he said. "It should be a place where the family can spend a Saturday afternoon."

One area of the deteriorating park.

State legislators eye crime-fighting tactics

Despite past efforts of lawmakers, police agencies, judges and civic groups, crime continues to plague many Michigan communities. The state Legislature has identified crime as a problem that must be given top priority this year.

Legislation addressing the problem has been introduced, and members of the House recently passed nine anti-crime bills with bipartisan support.

Several bills passed target the criminal diversion of certain drugs from legitimate medical uses to illegal and potentially deadly abuses. The bills would help assure that prescription drugs go only to those with real medical need by implementing a tracking system that will allow authorities to monitor the distribution of the drugs.

The bills approved include those that will:

- Require pharmacies to do yearly inventories of prescription drugs, to make is easier for inspectors to audit the amount dispensed;
- Require distributors of controlled substances to report the distribution of all schedule II drugs - medically useful substances that must be controlled strictly because they are addictive;
- Restrict any person convicted of a misdemeanor or felony from working with controlled substances;
- Increase the severity of penalties against anyone who violates a controlled substance law;
- Require juvenile courtrooms to be open for juvenile abuse and neglect and delinquency cases. The judge would have the authority to close the hearing when appropriate;
- Tighten the definition of "nuisance activities" to allow law enforcement officials to move against neighborhood "crack" cocaine houses and provide for more effective uses of forfeiture proceedings;
- Preclude use of the Holmes Youthful Trainee Act (which excuses young people between 17 and 20 years old from have a criminal record) in cases involving serious offenses; and
- Extend the rights of crime victims to juvenile cases. The bill provides for notification, participation, protection and restitution for victims of juvenile crimes.

The fear and reality of crime is one of the most pressing concerns facing us today. It can be violent and deadly. It is a possibility for all of us.

The battle against crime will not be won overnight but, rather, after months and years of hard work by dedicated individuals at every level of government and in every community. The passage of this legislation represents progress in the battle for safety for ourselves and our children.

December: Sagittarians should be 'open' this month

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Don't be too quick to say goodbye to someone. There may be more to the story you aren't aware of. But do open up communications and discuss whatever problems are there. This could be healed, whatever the differences may be. It'll be much easier the first week of this month.

Your sense of compassion for others will be strong — but in an active sense of "what can I do personally to help?" Going into educational directions is the key to the door here.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Take your records and book-keeping to an expert to help you straighten it all out. Your money cannot be allowed to become confused, or you'll create a real nightmare.

Early in the month, clarify (in the order of importance) what your priorities are. You need to be clear on this and so do the others in your life.

Finding the funding for your plans is possible toward Christmas, especially if you share your spiritual purposes and plan to teach others, as well.

is the month that you open up all lines of communications. You'll free yourself and others of erroneous impressions, wrong ideas and misinterpretations, and eyes are opened. This will be a real feeling of relief, and lots of healing takes place.

It's just a great time. By Christmas, you and those you feel close to will be starting in a whole new direction. Relationships are filled with excitement and surprises. Travel could be in the plans and lots of growth through other people.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) — You're having a fabulous conversation with yourself. You're ending those activities and contacts that compromise what you know is correct behavior. If you have to hide it or keep it a secret, it's got nothing to do with integrity. If you feel you're right, you shouldn't have to hide anything. (You are not avoiding hassles — you avoid responsibility with secret activities.)

Look for a real big breakthrough in your health and work just before Christmas!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may be the organizer for something this month. Make sure you are real clear on what you expect of others. (They can't read your mind, you know!) Children and other dependents can surprise you a lot this month. Be very choosy of who you invite into your home.

During holiday times, we seem to trust much easier. Limit visitors to those you have known for a long time, if you can. This could be the opportunity of a lifetime coming up where travel is concerned!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You may have a totally unexpected month. Your work and career are accented in the first week. For the next couple of weeks, you won't know how it affects you exactly. Then comes all the rest of the stuff. Home life and personal business are filled with surprises. No matter what it looks like at first, this will free you up from overwhelming burdens and give you the opportu-ity to make dreams come true.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — A particular area of research becomes an important part of your time this month. You can be extremely productive this month! Teaching (formal or otherwise) should be occupying your time a lot, too. Love increases more now than it has in the last 12 years. If it isn't real, get rid of it because real is now available if there isn't something else in its way!

Lots of short-term trips may be on the agenda toward the end of the month, and Christmas may bring in surprises like you never dreamed!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) — Don't be an emotional mugger! Someone else's misfortune becomes an opportunity for you — to help them, but more importantly it helps you too — a lot! Listen very carefully to conversations with others because they can inspire an incredible idea! It could change your financial picture for the better! By Christmas, the idea should be in full bloom. Don't share it with people who aren't supportive of you. They'll only try to discourage you. Don't worry about money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may have to come right out and tell someone exactly how you feel. You'd like that people would understand certain things without being told, but some folks are so wrapped up in their own lives that they are insensitive to others. It isn't anger. It's just time to let your feelings be known. It releases and frees you up.

It's a cleansing and a healing you need. Once you truly let go, every bit of your prosperity is cut loose. By Christmas, you'll no longer be worried. You'll be excited and thrilled — if you let go now!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Things at work need working on. Make sure you keep communications open, and remember that the "silent treatment" is childish and non-productive and is part of the problem. Don't allow ego issues to become more important than cooperation and harmony at work.

There are others who are watching how you handle all of this. Do it with class, style and maturity, and you'll be amply rewarded by the end of the year.

Pout and complain, and you may create a real surprising outcome for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You may hear from someone you've lost contact with this month. In fact, several "someones" may connect with you. Choose to renew the ones who have grown and expanded. Avoid those who are still where they were way back then. You have so many new people, new activities and new opportunities around you before the year is out that you don't want to carry old baggage with you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You have to redefine what your true security is and what really is important to you. You could lose true support people by devaluing their worth, and the consequences will be very clear. Support of others can bring you more than you ever dreamed. The choices you make this month will determine the direction of your career, and there is a major change in store. The support people, or lack of them, will be based on your treatment of others. This is a long-time accumulation.

Be able to live with a healthy, happy dog

The following is a list of common, everyday actions you should be able to do with your dog. You should:

- Be able to take food from him. It doesn't matter what kind of food, bone or toy, when you wish to. You should be able to open the dog's mouth and remove it.
- Be able to take your dog to the veterinarian, and the dog should allow any examination without any sign of aggression. (This does not include a dog badly injured or sick and in severe pain.)
- Be able to throw a party, have Christmas dinner or invite people over socially without the dog becoming a bother and your guests becoming a wreck.
- Be able to groom your dog without him putting up a fight.
- Be able to walk with your dog without him pulling so hard and wildly at the leash that the walk becomes an ordeal.
- Be able to leave the dog

dan's dogs

alone in the house, free to roam throughout the home without your returning to massive destruction.

- Be able to give your dog a command without yelling.
- Be able to watch TV or read a book without your dog pestering you.

If you cannot do any one of the above-listed points, you and your dog need help.

On the other hand, if you recognize that a dog is a member of the family and should be treated as one, has unbiased devotion and loyalty, returns love tenfold and is anxious to learn and perform, then you are the ideal dog owner.

An 1850s Christmas

'Taste' of history offered at Village

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

For a bit of holiday nostalgia – and a meal fit for a hungry stagecoach traveler – there's nothing like the 1850s Christmas dinner at the Eagle Tavern in Greenfield Village.

Unlike the patrons of the tavern who stepped out of their horse-drawn stagecoach on their way from Detroit to Chicago a century ago, the 1987 visitors emerge from their automobiles and enter Greenfield Village for an evening-long recreation of "Christmas Past" in the actual tavern which was moved to the site from Clinton, Mich.

Visitors board horse-drawn carriages – or sleighs if there is sufficient snow on the ground – and ride to the Eagle Tavern. They are greeted by costumed men and women and led into the candle lit dining room to await the serving of a family-style holiday dinner.

Warm cider – with or without a portion of rum – is served to the guests, and carolers, accompanied by guitars, begin to make their rounds of the tables to entertain.

Prior to the meal, patrons can step into the bar and sample "spirituous liquors," punches, malt beverages or temperance drinks. According to a young bartender, the most popular beverage served at the tavern is hot cider.

Unfortunately – or fortunately for Harriet and Caleb Wood – the 1850s dinners are booked for this season. As an alternative, there is a holiday package which includes a dinner at the American Cafe and a visit to exhibits at the Henry Ford Museum.

Special Christmas exhibits will be featured at both the Village and Museum through Jan. 3. One of the highlights is the display of the Howard Bros. Circus, "the greatest little show on earth." The miniature circus, which dates from the 1930s, includes circus vignettes with tiny performers, animals, roustabouts and audiences. There also is a holiday showing of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" through Jan. 2.

Persian sailors need letters

Several area U.S. Navy sailors and other military personnel will be spending the Christmas holiday season thousands of miles away from home in the Persian Gulf.

Family members can show their appreciation for the sailors' sacrifices by sending holiday cards and letters to a Navy sailor or Marine. However, no packages should be sent.

Releasing inmates is not the answer

Somehow, releasing inmates from the county jail just doesn't seem like the logical – not to mention safe – way to save money in Wayne County.

Last week, county Executive Edward McNamara announced plans to close one floor of the county jail in order to save an estimated $895,000 in a deficit-plagued Wayne County budget. To do this, jail officials would have to release up to 128 inmates earlier than planned and implement the layoff of 21 employees.

This decision is not a wise one and should not be allowed to proceed.

No doubt, the county executive had his hands full when trying to find a way to trim $12 million from his $200 million county budget. Cuts in services, layoffs of employees and an all-around "tightening of the belt" are all expected results of an axe-wielding budget balancer.

But releasing prisoners to save money? The idea is absurd.

Before making such a decision, county officials must first examine the facts. First, most, if not all, inmates in the county jail have been convicted of a felony – murder, armed robbery, possession of dangerous drugs, rape and/or arson. Misdemeanor offenders – those convicted of less serious crimes – have not been placed in the county facility since officials there announced in October 1986 that there simply was no room.

In turn, area judges and law enforcement personnel have begun to devise alternatives to jail sentences for the misdemeanor offenders, such as community service, fines and even at-home electronic surveillance.

Obviously, for two years, the jail overcrowding problem has been a major one. If this problem accelerates and results in the release of convicted felons, the safety and criminal justice system of our area will be jeopardized.

But the blame for this unwise decision cannot rest solely on the back of county Executive McNamara. State officials have been slow to respond to a county request – no, it was a plea – for state assistance in a new financial plan for the county. Proposed has been a surcharge on the state lottery for county residents. Other proposals have also been discussed.

No action, however, has been taken.

The jail situation is a dangerous one for all residents in the county and throughout the state. Overcrowded jail cells are far from a new issue or item of debate. Immediate action has been needed for more than two years.

One solution to the overcrowding problem offered by Wayne 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold and police officials there is a privately owned jail, financed by a consortium of cities in western Wayne County. The idea is an innovative one in terms of jails, but it also seems to be an only hope in keeping convicted criminals off of the city streets.

Nevertheless, the mere overcrowding of our jails – sadly – is not an issue here. What is at stake is whether we will allow a bad situation to become disastrous.

The early release of convicted felons in the Wayne County jail cannot be accepted by state or county officials or residents in these communities. Jail overcrowding is already at a crisis situation. The problem cannot be allowed to accelerate.

We urge state lawmakers to quickly consider the alternatives at hand for Wayne County. We urge these same lawmakers to put into action – or at least devise an alternative – a workable solvency plan that will eliminate the need to even propose an idea as ridiculous as the early release of criminals – and closing of county parks, elimination of county services and other cuts proposed by the county administration.

And we urge county officials and Executive McNamara to take another look at the county budget and make emergency cuts elsewhere. Cuts in the county jail and the release of prisoners should not even be considered when making the cuts.

The reason is simple: Our lives our depending on it.

A prayer for peace

The first rule of war is that young men die.

The second rule of war is that nobody can do anything about the first.

Since I was a boy, I have thought about the nature of war. Like every other human being on the planet, I've pondered a whole list of concerns about the phenomenon of battling nations.

I've also weighed and considered what circumstances, if any, in my estimation, are justifiable for the loss of human life. Interesting that one's perspective seems to change radically when the individual is at risk of being called into active service, or one's child is apt to be called on to fight for the mother land.

This week the world will change for all time. An evaluation as to the wisdom of the actions that will transpire in Washington, D.C. between the leaders of two nations is yet to be written.

Those with a trained eye believe that perhaps two women have accomplished what has thus far been prevented by the pride, arrogance, and perhaps foolishness of a male-dominated world.

History, no doubt, will speak of Raisa Gorbachev and Nancy Reagan as strong-willed individuals who understand the meaning of life as only a mother can. These women may have acted for all the other mothers who ever feared the destruction of the very souls they carried within their wombs.

They may have influenced their husbands to act, risk, dare, to move toward peace. Have they, finally, spoken for every mother who ever loved her child and convinced their husbands to attempt to stop killing our children in foolish and unproductive wars?

I have always been amazed by our need to "play out the role" that society and our peers seem to require. Labor contracts often could be settled quickly, logically and inexpensively. Yet, there is an expectation that first the parties

must fight the fight.

In arms negotiations, we must spend massive amounts of money on weaponry, so that we can negotiate the dismantling of the machines of destruction we have created.

President Reagan, a man quite adept at playing roles, knew, I believe, long ago that he would one day reach this point in his final term in office. I believe that he is playing out a role that he knows must be performed.

Reagan, I am convinced, told himself that he must first fight the good fight, with the budget, with the American people, in Congress, with those who gave him the support to be elected, and with his adversaries at home, abroad...and in the Soviet Union.

Ronald Reagan had spent his time in the union ranks fighting for the rights of his fellow actors. He is a man who knows all too well how negotiations must be played out to reach logical and hopefully, the inevitable peace that follows conflict.

Religion has historically been the essential cause of war. Some might suggest that fighting because "God or Allah is on our side," is simply a cover for the true motivation for war...greed.

Wars are, some suggest fought for power and control over land, resources, or in a word... MONEY.

I do not trust Mikhail Gorbachev, nor the Proletariat he represents. I want to...I just don't. I do know that the world needs peace. We need to end the threat of nuclear war so that the children of the world can begin again to believe that life is worth living, so that mothers, and fathers, can once again believe that they want to bring children into the world to face hope, not constant despair.

It is time we fight wars with dollars rather than death. We do that now with the Japanese. It is time we center our energies as nations on feeding and clothing the uncared for of the world.

It is time that we fight cancer, AIDS, crime, and a slovenly work ethic with the same ferocity that some would unleash upon our fellow man. And yet I worry.

I fear that we will succeed in easing our fears of total destruction by a nuclear holocaust and exchange it for an unleashing of conventional hostilities. I pray that we are not posturing for the death of our children by other more "normal" means.

From this time on, the world will be a different place. The hand of time will write and tell of a time when...There was a cry for "peace, peace," but there was no peace. Then a peace treaty was signed between the leaders of the two most powerful nations the world has ever known.

We look to the Bible, history, the predictions of Nostradamus, astrology, and our Ouija boards to tell us what tomorrow will bring.

The optimists say peace is possible with the Soviet Union. The pessimists contend that war, like poverty, will always be with us.

I look into the eyes of little children and stare at my only son, and at my two step-sons, and pray they will never know the personal hell of war. I yearn for grandchildren who can live in a world of peace and hope.

I hope those who say that Nancy Reagan and Raisa Gorbachev have done what no man could ever do are right. After all, these are women who have held their children's children in their arms. That alone should prompt peace.

See you next week.

School land sale opposed

To The Editor:

I am infuriated! After reading District Buys land options, (Westland, Wayne and Canton Eagle, See 2) the more I read this article the more it ticks me off!

Dennis O'Neil wants to purchase land (that was part of Wayne many years ago) for $5,000.00 per acre! For building a new school. Why?

My daughter, as well as the rest of Wayne-Westland students, are forced to 'beg' door to door money for band uniform funds, choir robes, gym equipment, music sheets, etc.!

Plymouth Canton schools should be allowed to share this burden since a majority of children attending Walker Elementary live in Canton.

WANDA JOHNSON
Wayne

Icy roads need Romulus attention

(Editor's note: the following letter was sent to the Associated Newspapers to be published as a letter to the editor. The original letter was sent to Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara on Dec. 4. We have reprinted the entire letter.)

letters

Dear Mr. McNamara:

I am a resident of the city of Romulus, and I am very concerned about the safety of our citizens when the roads are icy. On Thursday, Dec. 3, it snowed all day with no accumulation. At 11 a.m., a city truck came past St. Aloysius School where I work, and was putting salt on the roads. The roads were not icy or slippery, so why the salt?

On Friday, Dec. 4, the roads were treacherous and there was not a city or county truck to be seen. People that I know who travel in or out of the city of Romulus say that the roads everywhere are salted but in the city of Romulus. I would like to know why?

Other cities salt the school bus routes first to assure the safety of our children. If I were a school bus driver, I would refuse to drive a bus on the streets in Romulus. You not only have your own life but the lives of our children. We don't need salt after everyone gets to work or school and after the sun comes out to melt the ice - we need it during rush hour in the morning.

Also, one of our teachers was involved in an accident right in the town proper. She was going from one intersection to another trying to get around one of the many trains that block traffic. She was going less than five mile per hour and slid into the back of a truck. And to add insult to injury, she was given a ticket for unnecessary speeding.

On behalf of all the citizens of Romulus, I would appreciate your attention in the matter.

Police focus should be local

Editor:

Recent television and newspaper articles indicate that the Romulus police department has joined in the speed traps to be set up on I-94 in conjunction with the state police. As a resident of the city of Romulus, I would like to voice my strong opposition to this policy and call upon the administration to start concentrating on the crime problems in the city and get off the freeways.

Once again, the fine officers of the Romulus police have been pitted against the community by actions of this administration. Last July, residents stormed city council meetings demanding police protection for their neighborhoods. Evidently the powers that are haven't gotten that through their heads.

What must residents of this city do to get this? How many homes must be broken into, service stations robbed before the administration realigns the priorities? Don't the people's requests matter? Don't the hundreds of signed petitions to city council count for anything? It sure looks like they don't!

Also, with the department policy of not defending traffic citations in court because the powers that be don't want to pay an officer overtime, should these speeders attempt to fight these tickets, they would most likely be dismissed because the officer failed to show. What a waste of time.

I hope Romulus officials will reexamine this policy immediately and let the officers of the Romulus do the job they do best: protection of the people.

Q: Would you support a tax on the lottery to help Wayne County?

John Monge
Deputy
Westland

Yes, I would because the county provides necessary services. If you close the jails, you have to put people somewhere. You have to pay to keep people.

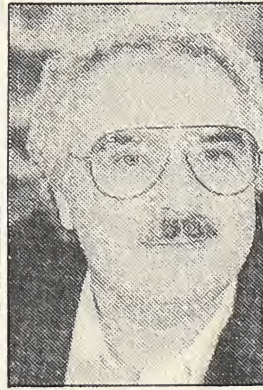

Nadeen Schultz
Secretary
Westland

I haven't decided. I hope that the citizens of Wayne County get an opportunity to vote on it.

Lillian Patrias

I think it would be a lot better if everyone had a chance to vote on it, instead of just passing it without letting people vote on it.

Dr. Ronald Sierota

I wouldn't support it. This is changing the purpose of the lottery from aid to the school system.

It would be cheaper than paying extra property taxes.

I don't know. As long as it went to Wayne County and not to Coleman Young.

Santa: Female St. Nick has true spirit

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

The Santa Claus who makes an appearance every weekend at Frank's Nursery in Westland never once bellows a "ho, ho, ho" or a song-like rendition of "merry Christmas." In fact, this Santa lacks the traditional "belly that shook like a bowl full of jelly" and the gruff-sounding voice of a jolly old elf.

But even without these traditional attributes, the person behind the velvet suit and the cotton-like beard is as close to the spirit of Old Saint Nick as anyone could find south of the North Pole.

Mary Martini is that Santa Claus, and "yes, I am a woman," she will proudly explain, while seated in the Christmas throne of glory in the local Frank's store. The job is the first paying Santa position Martini has obtained during her three-year search to be recognized and respected behind the red and white outfit. And, judging from the reaction of the children and store officials who admire her charm and ability to handle children, it won't be the last.

Martini, 33, is a cashier by trade. She was born and raised in Chillicothe, Texas, and, in 1984, moved to Westland along with her husband and four children.

She closed her "express lane" and walked away from the grocery store business two years ago and decided to become a seasonal worker - but only at Christmas.

Her first attempt to be one of the first "woman Santas" in the area was thwarted last year, after officials from a local mall said they wouldn't hire a female St. Nick. Their counter-offer of a pixie position didn't fulfill Martini's dream to be Santa, so she declined the offer, updated her own Santa Claus costume and became more determined to see her dream come to life.

And, finally, her unending determination and Santa-like spirit have paid off.

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: How did you obtain the Santa Claus job at Frank's?

MARTINI: I had gone in with some pictures, and (store officials) didn't believe it was a female by looking at the pictures. I showed them one that had my name under a (published) picture. The lady said she wanted her manager to see it. And the next day they called me.

ANP: Tell me about your experiences in trying to be a Santa last year.

MARTINI: I had gone out to apply at Westland mall and was told they wouldn't even consider me for a Santa Claus. They said the only time they would possibly use one was if they didn't get enough men. They told me I could be a pixie, and I told them I didn't want the job.

ANP: What is the job description of a Santa Claus?

MARTINI: Mostly, it's to make the little kids happy. I don't think the kids figure out that I'm a female. Even if their parents say something, I don't think they really care.

I don't come across with a "ho, ho, ho" from the start because the kids don't know the difference anyway. The kids seem to love it. I treat them just like you would treat any kid. I'll act silly with them and ask them to sing their alphabet with me. In fact, some of the parents have trouble getting their kids away from me.

I don't put on an act. I try to come across as the best friend they have. I'm me!

ANP: Do any of the kids say anything about a "female Santa Claus?"

MARTINI: I only had one girl that has really come right out and noticed. I got myself out of this one real well.

She looked at me kind of funny. It was after her mom had said I was "Mrs. Santa Claus." She couldn't quite figure out what the difference was.

We got to talking, and I asked her what she wanted to be when she grew up. She said, "a movie star," and her mom kind of laughed. But I said to her that when I was a little kid I wanted to be a Santa Claus, and it's just a matter of setting in your mind what you want to be. The little girl grinned and gave me the biggest hug I ever had in my life! She decided that maybe it's not so impossible for her to be a movie star.

ANP: How long have you wanted to be a Santa Claus?

MARTINI: I think about three years ago, I decided that I wanted to do something different. I watched the Santa Clauses at a Christmas party I went to. They were stupid. The pictures came out lousy, the guys took no pride in how they looked, and the kids hollered and screamed and everything else. I thought, "this is not what Christmas is all about."

ANP: Why did you want to be Santa Claus?

MARTINI: The kids appreciate it so much. And I just like making people happy.

ANP: What was Christmas like for you as a child?

MARTINI: I have gone with-out, and I know how it feels. Until I was 13 and went to a foster home, there was only two Christmases that I ever got anything. And we never had a Christmas tree, either.

When I was 6, I got a pair of earmuffs, and I thought those were the greatest things in the world. And when I was a little bit older, my dad got me a little play guitar. It wasn't because he didn't want to give a lot of gifts. It was just because he couldn't afford to.

That's what made a lot of difference now. Giving a kid hope and encouraging him to be the best is what I say to the kids.

Holidays bring depression

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Many of the family traditions of yesterday – caroling, attending religious services and visiting neighbors during the Christmas holidays – have been replaced by trips to the malls, the viewing of spectator sports and a flurry of busyness.

Roger Dallwig, director of Her Place/His Place Counseling Center, views this as “a loss of an important ingredient in family life.”

“Every family needs some sense of tradition,” Dallwig said. “Our Christmas celebrations have been commercialized, and there is really no way to completely turn this around. However, we still need to work on maintaining our own sense of values and our own family traditions.”

Some of Dallwig’s best holiday memories, he said, are of “a lot of family involvement in the celebration of Christmas with people gathered around the piano singing carols” and later playing games and dancing.

Dallwig noted that our celebrations are becoming more passive with activities centered around watching the bowl games or being entertained by televised holiday specials.

In most families where Christmas traditions are observed, he said, it is usually the wife’s family traditions that are perpetuated. This is almost always by “default,” Dallwig said, because men seem to play a less active role in the family celebrations. Usually, the men pick out the Christmas tree, place the lights on it and – under some duress – sign a few Christmas cards, Dallwig said.

If men want to keep their family traditions alive, they must take a more active role in preserving them, according to the therapist.

“There are some instances when traditions work against us,” Dallwig said. “Sometimes those traditions are hurtful reminders of the past. For example, they may dredge up a lot of feelings for someone who is newly divorced.”

Dallwig advises those who are newly divorced or widowed or who have recently remarried to attempt to begin some new traditions this holiday season.

People can look for ideas about the celebration of the holidays in books about their ethnic heritage or they can talk to older family members about their childhood memories. Ideas for places to visit and activities to participate in may also be gathered from the listings in the weekly newspaper.

Often divorced people find it uncomfortable to continue observing the same traditions that they did in their married days, the therapist said. In those instances, there should be a careful evaluation of those traditions and, when possible, changing or dropping those that prompt unpleasant reminders.

For example, if tree-trimming was part of a family gathering, the divorced person could invite new friends or co-workers to a tree-decorating party. Perhaps, this could be the year that the individual cut his or her own tree if it has never done this before. Often church groups or clubs plan a group outing around a trip to a tree farm, and the newly divorced person could join this activity.

The tree trimmings often bring back memories – both pleasant and unpleasant. If those decorations prompt more sad memories than glad ones, then pack them up or give them away. The Christmas tree could take on a new look – one that will some day be a tradition – with a new holiday theme.

Traditions of a 1980s Christmas

Lifestyles prompt change

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

It’s a fast-paced, “get-ahead” world we are living in these days. No longer do we see Dad coming home from a hard day at work and being greeted by Mom, who is just putting the finishing touches on her pot roast dinner. And, just as dinner customs have changed in recent years, so, too, have many of the holiday customs.

But just as we think that old-fashioned customs – such as the singing of Christmas carols around the Christmas tree – have faded due to the increase in dual-income families, the importance of family togetherness seems to be returning again, according to Dr. Anne Cairns Federlein, an expert in the field of family education and a consultant to several businesses on various family issues.

Federlein said she has studied family behavior for years and has concluded that the family continuously revolves around a repetitive cycle. Currently, she said, the family is in the middle of another “turnaround.”

“While only a few years ago, it appeared that Christmas had finally reached the point where it was completely a commercial holiday and that the “family” side of it was gone forever, I think that’s changing again. Now, I see the holiday becoming more family-oriented,” said Federlein.

She attributed the increase in family awareness to the economic downturn society is currently experiencing.

“We seem to be getting away from the materialistic view of Christmas and getting back to the real values of the family. But I think that’s due in part to the financial slump that society is going through. People are thinking twice before spending thousands of dollars on Christmas gifts,” she said.

Rather than spending an overabundance of money on gifts, Federlein said, people are starting to opt for more simplistic items from the heart – instead of the department store.

“Many years ago, the religious aspect of the holiday was stressed. But as people became more affluent, they became more interested in the commercial nature of the holiday. But now, I think people are starting to realize that God plays a major role in Christmas. People are becoming more conservative, and there is a trend to get back to traditions,” said Federlein.

She added that even customs such as Santa Claus have changed dramatically throughout the years.

“I grew up really believing that if I

Loneliness can be ‘cured’

By JANICE FRITZ
ANP Staff Writer

As visions of sugar plums are dancing in the heads of both children and adults this holiday season, a lot of people are having somewhat drearier visions as Christmas quickly approaches.

These are the visions of themselves spending a usually joyous holiday without the closeness of their spouses, family and friends.

For various reasons—including divorce, death and relocation – many people are spending the holidays alone. The result, experts say, can be a feeling of being “left out.” It can also be acute cases of depression.

Tracy Tandy, area program director of the YWCA in Inkster, helps oversee the Phoenix Divorce Support Group, a bi-monthly support organization offered through the YWCA.

Tandy said divorced people often feel apart from the holiday activities because they feel the season is geared toward couples, and family togetherness is always highly emphasized.

“This is a time for sharing with others, not for being alone. But when people have no one to share the holidays with, they can often feel pretty low. I try to help them cope with these disturbed feelings,” Tandy explained.

The first step, she said, is to eliminate the loneliness.

“First, I try to get them through those really low moments. Getting them through the depression is most important. A little bit of their depression can be alleviated just by having someone to share their feeling with. The support group is really instrumental in that. But then, I also like to suggest things that these people can do to avoid being alone on Christmas,” said Tandy.

But for 85-year-old Florence Bakewell, of Westland, Christmas Day is always a lonely occasion.

Bakewell spends the holiday in her home, where she reads the Bible, listens to a radio-broadcast church service and, on occasion, cooks a small dinner for one.

After 50 years of marriage, Bakewell’s husband, Herbert, died in 1981. Since then, she has lived alone, confined to her home because of various physical impairments.

Nevertheless, Bakewell has never lost site of the true meaning of the season.

“I was brought up as an only child, so (being alone) was more or less a way of life,” she said. “I know the true meaning of Christmas. It’s not how many presents you get or who you visit on that holiday. It’s a recognition of Christ’s birthday. More people should take out the time to remember that.”

Traditions

wasn't a good girl, I would actually get coal in my stocking. Kids today are well aware that even if they misbehave, they will get their stocking filled with their favorite goodies. I've never seen a child who hasn't gotten what he or she wanted in the stocking, despite previous actions. It wasn't always like that," Federlein explained.

In addition, holiday baking seems to be a "thing of the past."

"First of all, hardly anyone I know of has the time to sit and bake cookies at anytime, let alone the holidays. Besides that, even if there were time, why would anyone want to go through the bother anymore, when there are so many gourmet bakeries around which could do the same thing without all the hassle?" said Federlein.

Time plays a major role in the tradition of mailing out the Christmas greeting cards.

"I used to send out 250 cards. Now, I'm down to about 25. I will usually just sit down and call certain people to wish them a merry Christmas, which they enjoy more anyway and which goes along with what I said about getting back to simplicity," she continued.

Despite the streamlining of America traditions, Federlein said people – particularly parents – are making sure to preserve family rituals for their children.

"We want to give our kids traditions and cultural values that we have come to know so well, so that they may someday look back and cherish those memories."

I'm learning to love the postal service.

This time of year, I can hardly wait for the mailman to arrive each day as major corporations across the country are sending out wonderful presents in an effort to entice writers and editors into mentioning the products they sell. And, even though I don't usually offer them the free publicity they seek, I certainly do appreciate the gifts.

Now, don't misunderstand, I'm not getting a Rolls-Royce here or even a fur coat—it doesn't take much to make me happy. Take for example the sweet little cookbook the Pillsbury Company sent me this week which features wonderful things to do with the new microwave cakemixes they produce.

I have violated one of my own rules, however, and these recipes have not been tested in my kitchen. They do sound great, however, and really fast. If they fail you, complain to Pillsbury. If they are wonderful, I'll certainly be happy to take full credit for providing them to you.

BANANA FUDGE CAKE

1 pkg. Pillsbury Tunnel of Fudge Bundt Microwave Cake Mix
2 Tablespoons water
2 Tablespoons cooking oil
1/2 cup water
1/3 cup mashed ripe banana
1/3 cup cooking oil
1 egg

Using solid shortening, generously grease fluted tube ring pan provided with mix. In a small bowl, combine filling mix, 2 Tablespoons water and 2 Tablespoons oil. Stir until smooth. Set aside while preparing cake batter.

In medium bowl, combine 1/2 cup water, banana, 1/3 cup oil and egg and blend well. Add cake mix and beat with spoon 75 strokes or until well blended. Pour cake batter evenly into prepared pan. Spoon prepared filling evenly in narrow ring over center of cake batter.

Microwave on HIGH for 5 minutes (7 minutes for compact ovens under 600 watts.) Cake is done when top no longer has any wet spots and loses its shiny appearance. If cake is not done, add additional time in 30 seconds intervals. Immediately invert onto serving plate. Cool 10 minutes. Cut glaze packet along cut line. Drizzle over warm cake. Serve warm or cool.

APPLESAUCE UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Topping: 1/2 cup thinly sliced apple
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 Tablespoons margarine or butter, softened

Cake: 1 pkg. Pillsbury Microwave Yellow Cake Mix with pan
2/3 cup applesauce
1/3 cup oil
2 Tablespoons water
1 egg
1/3 cup chopped walnuts

Using solid shortening, grease 7-inch round pan provided with mix. Arrange apple slices decoratively in bottom of prepared pan. Sprinkle evenly with brown sugar and dot with butter.

In medium bowl, combine all cake ingredients. Beat with spoon about 75 strokes or until well blended. Pour into prepared pan. Microwave on HIGH for 7 minutes. Cake is done when top no longer has any wet spots and pull away from sides of pan. If cake is not done, add additional time in 30 second intervals. Immediately invert onto serving plate. Cool.

A 'Cultural' cook

Hellenic Center chef does things right

By SUE WILLETT
ANP Executive Editor

The London Chop House...The St. Regis Hotel...The Kingsley Inn...The Benchmark Restaurant... A list of the finest dining places in and around the area? Yes, but it also represents the training ground of Giorgio Golematis, executive chef at the Hellenic Cultural Center in Westland. One of the most acclaimed continental chefs to ever prepare a roux or whip up a batch of bouillabaisse, Golematis, 39, now oversees all the food preparation and service at the $3 million facility on Joy Road.

Golematis has established some lofty goals at the Hellenic Center where he personally does all the food purchasing and menu planning. He supervises a staff of 60 at the facility which can accommodate the needs of up to 1,200.

"I want to make this place the best, it's that simple," he explained. "The church council here understands that and they, too, intend for this to be the best quality place. There is no question of cutbacks or shortcuts. We do it right," Golematis said.

Doing it right is inherent in Golematis' training. He began his career in food service when he arrived here at age 21 from Greece as a bus boy at the St. Regis Hotel in Detroit. Six years later, he was the director of food and beverage at the prestigious hotel and had been educated at the finest restaurants in Detroit and Canada, courtesy of his employer.

"When I first came here, to this country, I wanted to go to school to complete my education, but I knew no English. My thought was to get a job where I could learn the language and that's what I was looking for. At the St. Regis, I kept getting promotions, every year, and I loved the work. I stayed in the food business because it was what I wanted," Golematis said.

Golematis has been the proprietor of two establishments of his own, both of which received rave reviews from food critics across the state. His proficiency with food preparation, along with the amazingly low cost of his excellent entrees caused food aficionados to sit up and take notice.

"If someone gave me a restaurant today, no charge, not a penny, I wouldn't take it," Golematis said. The fame and the financial success came at too high a price, the chef explained.

"I was working 100 hours a week. I would go to work at 7 and not be home until everyone was asleep. I didn't see my daughter growing up, I only saw my wife when she would come to the restaurant. My family is the most important thing to me," Golematis explained.

That's undoubtedly true, and those lucky enough to choose the Hellenic Center as the site of their wedding reception find a man who appreciates romance and the emotion of the day. His own brush with cupid was the stuff of romance novels as he traveled to the airport nine years ago with his parents to meet some longtime friends arriving from their home town in Greece. With them was their daughter, Maria. It was love at first sight. He and his wife are now the parents of a daughter, Giorgianna, 5, who is already learning her way around the kitchen. The couple shares a love of food preparation, and Maria is famous for her pistachio cream pie. Who is the best cook? Giorgio declined to say, but rates his wife's culinary expertise as "fabulous."

The menu at the Hellenic Center includes several of the entrees for which Golematis is famous. Creating his unique approach to food was somewhat of a trial, however.

"I remember I would cook for hours in the basement with food everywhere and my wife would shake her head," Golematis recalled with a laugh.

Garmonche is Golematis' real love, and he takes an artist's pride in each and every fruit and vegetable tray and dessert or sweet table. His ice carvings, which take nearly an hour to complete, have decorated the tables of Linda Solomon and many other celebrities.

He continues to buy his groceries from the same suppliers used by The London Chop House and noted with some pride that guests at the Hellenic Center are eating exactly the same food they would get at that famous downtown spot.

"I believe in keeping it simple. The best food is simple and yet tasty. I think a few really excellent recipes can be enough, then when you learn how to do a few things really well, you can begin to change and experiment to alter taste," Golematis advised.

Golematis agreed to share a trio of recipes which adhere to his principles of simple, but tasty food. The two entrees are of his own creation.

PEPPER STEAK

(This recipe is for one serving. For more, simply increase the ingredients proportionately.)

8-ounce filet mignon or rib eye steak
Major Gray's Chutney (Indian Mango)
2 ounces Dijon mustard
Fresh ground pepper corns
4 ounces Grand Marnier liqueur
1/2 cup brown gravy
2 ounces half and half

Broil steak in the oven to preferred degree of doneness. With a teaspoon, cover the top of the steak with Dijon Mustard and then one tablespoon of chutney. Top with fresh ground pepper, a touch of Grand Marnier and put back in oven at 400 degrees for two minutes. Mix brown gravy with half and half and remaining Grand Marnier and heat. Pour over steak which has been transferred to warmed dinner plate.

CHICKEN MARSALA

Two 5-ounce chicken breasts, boned and skinned
Salt and pepper to taste
2 cups fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 medium onion, chopped
1 garlic glove, diced
2 Tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup Port wine
4 ounces half and half
2 cups brown gravy

Grill or broil chicken breasts until completely cooked. In a skillet, melt butter and saute onions and garlic until golden brown. Add mushrooms and cook for 5 minutes. Add Port wine and cook for an additional 10 minutes. Add brown gravy and cook for 5 minutes. Add cream, stirring well and pour over top of chicken.

BANANAS FOSTER

8 cups vanilla ice cream
6 ounces cream de banana liqueur
6 bananas, peeled and sliced
6 ounces light brown sugar
4 ounces butter or margarine cinnamon
1/2 fresh lemon

Melt butter in skillet over medium low heat and add brown sugar. Mix well until soft. Add cream de banana and cook for 5 minutes over low heat. Squeeze juice from lemon into pan and add bananas. Cook until sauce is thickened, stirring continuously. Place one cup of ice cream in decorative dish. Pour sauce over ice cream in individual dishes and sprinkle with cinnamon. Will serve eight.

IN CHICAGO COURT BATTLE - CHIROPRACTORS PROVED TWICE AS EFFECTIVE IN RETURNING INJURED INDUSTRIAL WORKERS TO THE JOB

EVIDENCE AT 11 YEAR TRIAL INDICATED THAT DOCTORS OF CHIROPRACTIC WERE TWICE AS EFFECTIVE AS MEDICAL PHYSICIANS IN RETURNING INJURED INDUSTRIAL WORKERS WITH BACK AND NECK PROBLEMS TO THEIR JOBS.

Among the most persuasive arguments given in testimony was one given by Per Freitag M.D., Ph.D., professor of Orthopedics. He offered convincing evidence of chiropractic effectiveness in a research study he had conducted. According to the research study the average in-patient stay at the John F. Kennedy hospital in Chicago was 5-7 days, while at the Lutheran hospital it was 14 days. The JFK hospital incorporates chiropractors into their patient care program and the Lutheran hospital does not. According to Dr. Freitag the only difference in care was the inclusion of chiropractic.

CHIROPRACTORS PROVED SUCCESSFUL IN HELPING WITH MATERNITY CARE

Evidence was also given that the maternity ward of JFK hospital was demonstrating significant success with the use of chiropractic care in place of intradermal steroids. According to this study the use of epidural steroids was markedly reduced where the expectant mother received chiropractic care in the pre-natal period and in the labor and delivery rooms.

CHIROPRACTORS PROVED TO BE BETTER QUALIFIED IN OUR SPECIAL FIELD

Dr. Freitag also told the judge that in his opinion the anatomy and dissection labs at National College of Chiropractic were superior to those at the University of Illinois Medical School and that chiropractors have a better understanding of musculoskeletal ailments than do medical doctors. Another noted author and professor in five different medical colleges, Dr. John McMillan Menel, also testified that Palmer Chiropractic College and Life Chiropractic College were equal in academic excellence to the best medical schools in the nation that he had examined.

ALL THIS PROVED IN CHICAGO COURT: -

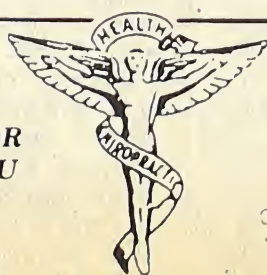

The American Medical Association found GUILTY in 11 year court battle.

After an eleven-year court battle, five chiropractors have won what is being called the "Victory of the Century" for chiropractic. The AMA were found guilty of having conspired to destroy the profession of chiropractic. Judge Susan Getzendanner labeled their actions as "lawless" and will issue orders to prevent further harrassment of the profession, in a decision handed down on August 27th, 1987.

Holiday spirit

Christmas from the heart

Christmas is a time of magic, of excitement, of joy. For weeks before the actual date the world seems to be undergoing a change. The earth seems to be revolving at a slower rate. Then, on Christmas Eve, it seems to stand still. A hush falls upon it in anticipation of a wondrous event. That event does not take place in an outer physical location.

There are Christmas events. One happened in a stable in Bethlehem almost 2,000 years ago. The other happens in the cradle of the human heart as we each understand the real meaning behind the event. This is the real Christmas. Unless Christmas reaches into the fabric of our everyday lives, it is without significance.

"Though Christ a thousand times in Bethlehem be born,
If He's not born in you
Your soul is all forlorn
More than ever with the sound of guns and violence stalking in our streets and materialism made god in our society, we need to recall that first Christmas. But, most of all, we need to be re-awakened to the need of a new birth in us.

The star of hope is still visible if we open our inner eyes to it. The Wise Men still come to worship if we open our minds to them. The angels still sing when we open our ears to the voice of truth-God.

This Christmas, we at Unity of Inkster relight a flame in our hearts to remind us of the light which came into the world almost 2,000 years ago. May this light burn in hearts everywhere.

We symbolize it in our candle-lighting service on December 20, from 7 to 8. Alone our light is a little one, but together we can send out a great light.

May the light of the Christ brighten all of our lives, and may we take the gift of ourselves to the manger of love. Then, again, the shepherds will bow, the Wise Men will bring gifts, and the angels sing.

The Rev. SaltPaw is the minister at the Unity Church of Inkster, 27236 Michigan Ave., Inkster. This column appears periodically and is written by ministers from area churches.

Prepared Churches gearing up for holiday activity

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Local churches have already begun to gear up for the Christmas holiday. This year, the decorations are sure to be some of the best, according to those doing the decorating.

"We have some new beautiful wreaths which we will put outside the church this year," said Alice Woolum, secretary for the First Methodist Church in Wayne.

"We have also had the 'hanging of the greens,' which people from the community help us decorate the different rooms." The church also will be the site of several special services and activities planned for December, including the "Christmas service," which was staged Dec. 6.

"Christmas are different symbols of the Christian church," said Woolum. "We decorate the tree with the chrismsons, and as we put each one on the tree, someone tells everyone the meaning of the chrismson."

On Dec. 13, the church will present the drama "Come and Behold Him." The play will be staged by the Sunday school students at 9 a.m. At 7 p.m., a festival of Christmas carols will be staged.

"Both of those events are usually well attended," said Woolum.

At the St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Westland, the inside of the church will be the focus of attention this year.

"We have a really impressive scene display which was made by one of our members and donated to the church. We have to be very careful when we put it in because it is ceramic, and there are lights on it."

Rev. Robert Baer said the services include a candlelight event on Christmas Eve. At 7 p.m., Sunday school students will retell the story of Christmas through words and songs.

The church will be decorated Dec. 13.

It's nice to talk about the weather.
BUT - Jesus said: "When it is evening, ye say, 'It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.' And in the morning, 'It will be foul weather today; for the sky is red and lowering.' O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky, but can ye not discern THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES?"

Matthew 16:2-3

Remember, Noah had a big funeral in his day, all around his boat was dead bodies. We are living as in the days of Noah.
How? Are you going to escape, John 3:36
Remember, Jesus said if ye believe not that I am He, ye shall die in your sins, John 4:25-26.
Remember the two foundations, Matthew 7:24-26, one wise man, one foolish man.
Remember the 10 virgins, Matthew 25:1, five wise, five foolish.
Remember the rich man, Luke 16:27-28, he prayed too late (pray now Lord, save me.)
Remember, we are living in the days like Noah and in the days like Sodom.
Remember Lot's wife
Judgement is coming, Flee from the wrath to come, I Thessalonians 5:9.

State champ bursts Huron cage bubble

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It just wasn't to be for New Boston Huron's record-setting girls' basketball team.

Coach Bill Harrison and the Chiefs' fantastic season came to an end at the regional finals before a home crowd Saturday night as the defending Class B state champs, Dearborn Divine Child, rallied to a narrow 53-50 victory.

"The kids played an excellent game," said Harrison whose club posted a record-establishing 23-2 won-lost season. "They can hold their heads high. They accomplished something that no other Huron team has ever been able to. We are very proud of each and every member of the team."

The victory advances Divine Child into tonight's quarterfinals of the state playoffs. The Falcons will meet Albion at Jackson Lumen Christi.

Huron's cage epic

New Boston Huron's history-making basketball season came to an end Saturday night as defending class B state champs, Divine Child, ousted the Chiefs in the regional finals 53-50. In Saturday's regional thriller, all-state candidate Lauri LaBeau(photo above, from right) led all scorers with 23 points. Grimacing with pain, Huron's Pam Hughes (photo above) is looked after by head coach Bill Harrison (at left) and assistant, while in the photo below Hughes is seeking a corridor to the Falcon basket before the fall. These kids have everything to be proud of. They had an exceptional season, a once-in-a-lifetime year. The student body . . . the faculty, this community are very proud of their accomplishment.

— Bill Harrison

Huron jumped on the state champs in the first period as 5-5 junior guard Lauri LaBeau contributed seven of her game high 23 points in the opening period to stake the Chiefs to a 20-14 lead. They managed to maintain the lead despite a rash of turnovers and D.C.'s outstanding performance by Monica Longe, who scored four of her team-high 13 points in the second stanza.

Huron led 29-26 at the halfway mark and when the two teams came out in the second half, neither could build more than a three-point advantage. The Chiefs remained ahead by three points entering the final period (44-42).

Limping from injuries, the Chiefs could only muster six points against D.C.'s 12 in the last eight minutes of the game.

Huron however missed miserably at the free throw line where they had 31 opportunities but made 14.

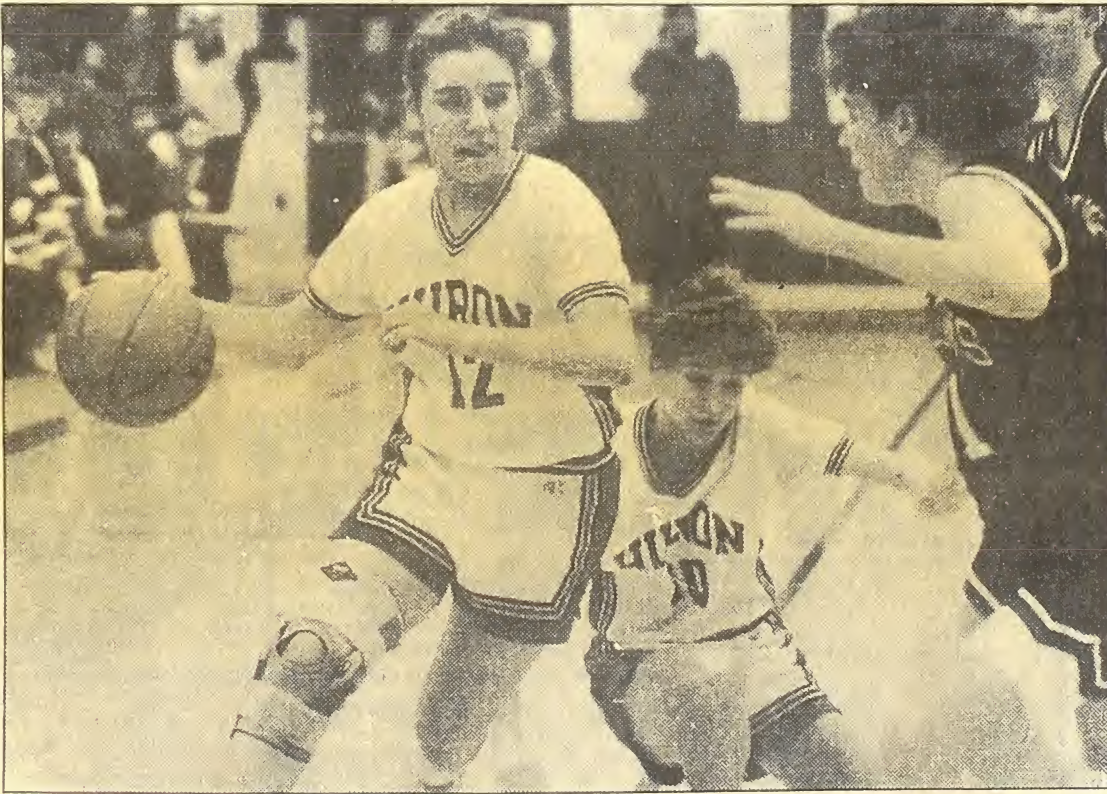

"Our inability to make free throws proved to be our undoing," Harrison said. "We had our chances, but the ball wouldn't fall when we needed it the most."

LaBeau drilled in 10 from the field but made only three of 12 charities for her game-high 23 points.

In the semifinals of the regional playoffs, Huron rallied to a 47-35 (See CHIEFS, page 3-C)

Belleville runs wild against Stevenson in opener

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It wasn't even close, and first year Belleville High coach Michael Garland didn't mind that at all.

The last two times Belleville and Livonia Stevenson clashed on the hardwood, they split. Each came away with one-point victories.

And Garland, who inherited the Tigers from Leon Birdshaw, was expecting another cliffhanger Friday night. However, thanks to a "team effort" and outstanding overall performances from 6-7 center Al Tilman, Andre Brantley, and Tony Belinger, the Tigers coasted to a 64-50 victory over their nonconference rivals in the season opener for both teams.

"It's a great way to start the season," said Garland who took his Tigers up against neighboring Romulus last night and will play Fordson on Friday in the Wolverine 'A' Conference opener for both teams.

Tilman carried the Tigers in the early stages against Stevenson. The 6-7 center sank eight of his 12 points to pace his

Venturini wins Bedford invitational

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

When you're second you try harder, according to the saying.

And apparently that's what Romulus senior wrestler Tony Venturini is up to this season. He's going to try his best to win the state title that eluded him a year ago.

Venturini, who finished second at state in the 98-pound class a year ago after piling up an incredible 54-1 won-lost record, has strung together nine consecutive victories thus far, including winning the prestigious Temperance Bedford Invitational over the weekend.

"Tony has set his goals for the season and obviously he wants to go all the way this year," said Romulus Coach Wayne Schimming. "He has the talent, and only time will tell if he realizes his ambitions."

Romulus finished seventh in a field of 19 teams at Bedford, but the field included eight teams that are ranked among the top 20 in the state this year.

Emerging from that tough field with the invitational team championship was Davison, with 166.5 points, followed by: Portage Central (153.5), Eaton Rapids (132.0), Bedford (123), Hazel Park (118.5), Jackson County Western (112), Romulus (105), Warren Lincoln (98), Melvindale (69), and Mt. Clemens (68).

Venturini, competing one weight class above his usual 98, launched his bid for the 105-pound class gold at Bedford with a 1-11 pin of Ann Arbor Pioneers' Cory Kincaid in the first round, then disposed of Davison's Josh DeVantier via a 1:15 fall. After claiming a technical fall over Clayton Cadle of Airport he reached the finals where he met Hazel Park's T. J. Baughman and stopped him in 1:55.

Although they didn't have any tournament runners-up, the Eagles did produce two third-place finishers and three fifth-place winners.

Tim Kosikowski earned a third-place medal in the 112-pound class and teammate, heavyweight Paul Nowicki also was third. The fifth-place awards went to Bruce Boyd (119), Dennis Corder (126) and Rick Champagne (132).

Romulus will place its Westland John Glenn Invitational crown on the block Saturday when the Eagles travel to Westland.

"It (Glenn) is another one of those excellent tests for us," Schimming said. "These kids will get to know just what the area has - or has not - because most of the top teams compete in these tournaments."

Gabriel blows Huron out in fourth quarter

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

There were some pleasant surprises in New Boston Huron's 1987 basketball opener Friday night.

But, not enough of them. "We lost our concentration and took some questionable shots in the fourth quarter," pointed out Coach Larry Swick after his Chiefs dropped a 71-60 cage opener to Riverview Gabriel Richard. "It was the kind of game you felt you should have one."

The Chiefs came back from a 20-17 first period deficit to outscore their rivals 17-11 on the strength of Andrew Jackson's game-high 23 points. In front 34-31 at the half, the Chiefs managed to maintain their precarious edge during the third period as each team scored 14 points. But Huron fell apart in the final period as Gabriel outscored the Chiefs 26-12.

"We gave them shots in that last period that we shouldn't of," Swick said. "And, because of our poor shot selection, we made only three of 16 in that last period."

Jackson, who is an excellent shooter when he takes his shots in the framework of the Huron scheme of things, hit on four three-pointers, but was shut off in that decisive fourth period. Larry Swick, the coach's son, also was in double figures as he drilled in 15 points and counted eight rebounds. Huron also got 12 points from Joe McLeod, a junior point guard, who received praise from the coach.

"I was really pleased with his overall effort," said Swick. "He was what we would call a 'pleasant surprise'."

Rob Watkowski paced the winners with 19 while teammates Antoine Moore and Don Mattern added 18 and 13 points, respectively.

Huron will open the conference phase of the season Friday night against Riverview. The Pirates won their opener 67-55 at the expense of Dearborn Heights Annapolis. The Chiefs will play Flat Rock, another league rival, on Tuesday.

2 starters sidelined with injuries, Vikings still look good

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

With two of their starters sidelined with injuries, Inkster launched the 1987 high school basketball campaign Friday night with an impressive 87-43 victory over non-conference rival, Ypsilanti Lincoln.

Coach George Thompson's club, minus starters Gary Johnson and Frank McCray, broke loose in the second period after struggling to a narrow 12-11 lead for the first eight minutes.

With versatile 6-5 Marvin Abney pumping in nine points and high-scoring James Poole adding eight, the Vikings outscored their hosts 21-14 in the second frame to take a 33-25 advantage into the locker room.

The perennial Suburban Athletic Conference rival exploded for 27 points while holding the Railsplitters to six in the third period. They took a commanding 60-31 advantage. The outcome of the contest was never in doubt after the third period as Thompson substituted freely.

"I felt that we played an excellent defensive game in the second half," noted Thompson who began his 18th year as head coach with the easy victory. "But we had those first game jitters and missed a bucket of baskets in that first quarter."

Poole, a diminutive 5-8 senior guard who is difficult to keep up with, pumped in nine field goals - three of those three-pointers - and was a perfect 2 for 2 at the free throw line for a game-high 23 points. Abney, who plays just about every position on the floor, contributed 16 points and Lee added 10.

Andy Donaley led the losers with 17.

The Vikings are without the services of Johnson, a 6-3 forward, who injured himself in scrimmage and is nursing a hurt knee. McCray was sidelined with the flu and Willie Davis is also on the doubtful list.

And Inkster will need them - and more - to stop Ypsilanti and Detroit Central, their next two non-conference opponents.

"Ypsilanti has always been a state powerhouse," commented Thompson, "and Central has the advantage of reaping some of the best talent in Detroit. We're going to have our hands full, and we won't have some of the players we were relying on."

Inkster met Ypsi last night and will clash with Central on Friday.

While a Belleville cager "loses his head" in his drive for the Livonia Stevenson basket, Lamar Robinson (22) muscles for board position with a Spartan in case of a rebound. team to a 20-10 first period lead that Belleville never relinquished. With Belinger joining the scoring with six second period points, the Tigers built up a 41-22 halftime margin.

Substituting indiscriminately in the second half, Garland however didn't get the expected offense he wanted. The Tigers sank a mere 10 points during the third period and didn't do much better in the final where they got 13. But the Spartans were not much better - they put 11 and 17 points respectively on the scoreboard for the final half.

Belleville placed three players in double figures. Tilman's 12 stood up as the game's high. Belinger finished with 11, and Andre Brantley added 10.

Belleville canned 18 of 34 from the free throw line for 52 percent and hit 23 of 71 from the field.

Usually respectable Fordson opened the season with a one-point victory (63-62) over St. Al's, a Class C cage team. But Garland warns that the Tractors can be tough.

"Fordson had the pick of players from an undefeated freshmen team. They always have talent out there," Garland said. "We have to cut down on our turnovers and improve with each game. That's what we are looking at now."

Robichaud tankers breeze to easy victory

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Forced to cancel and reschedule their opening Suburban Athletic Conference swim meet with River Rouge last week, Robichaud tuned up for the SAC Conference title race with a 104-62 victory over Dearborn St. Alphonsus.

Coach Jim Hadley's tankers will engage Oak Park on Thursday for their second SAC test. They were scheduled to swim Rouge last night.

"We have an untested club this year, but we have the potential to do a lot of things this season," Hadley said.

Against the Arrows of St. Al's, Robichaud had a pair of double event winners. Jason Frances touched in first for the 200 and the 500-yard freestyle events with efforts of 2:29.3 and 7:02.2, while teammate Mike Klix also was a double winner.

Klix turned in a 23.7 in winning the 50-yard freestyle and he was clocked in 58.7 for the 100 freestyle.

Robichaud received winning performances from diver Ken Wood, who amassed 130 points and from backstroke Bob Patrick who churned 1:14.6 in touching the wall first. Robert Stewart had a 1:15.6 in winning the breaststroke. He also was second in the 200-yard individual medley and helped the Bulldogs claim a victory in the 200-yard medley relay.

Teaming with Stewart in that first relay were Patrick, Wood and Russell Shumake, who combined for a 2:03.5.

victory over Dexter as Tracy Keith sank five three-pointers in her game-high 16 points. Pam Hughes added 10.

Dexter grabbed a 11-6 first period advantage, but the Chiefs closed the game to 21-20 before the intermission, then went on to outscore their rivals 17-8 and 10-6 in the final two periods.

In that pivotal third period, Huron came up with nine unanswered points thanks to Hughes, Keith, Dana Patterson and LaBeau who each sank one basket.

ELI JONES, A 13-year-old Canton resident, recently received a gold medal in solo dance and a bronze medal in figures in the Junior Roller Skating Olympic Nationals, which took place in Springfield, Mo. Skaters from around the United States competed in the two-day event in the categories of figures, free style and dance. This is not the first win for the eighth-grader, who took first place in solo dance and first place in figures during the Junior Olympic Regionals last May in Indianapolis, Ind., to qualify for the nationals. Jones, who has been skating for three years, first took lessons at the Skatin' Station in Canton and now studies under Adolph Wacker at the Ann Arbor Skate Company.

Fore can be more than just courtesy

Perhaps the most common term in golf is "FORE". This is the equivalent of take cover immediately!!!!!! Recently, two Michigan golfers have pursued litigation, after having been struck by golf balls from errant shots. In both cases, the shoemakers failed to warn the victims of the oncoming ball. According to a story of Saturday, December 5, one of the plaintiffs has been awarded $19,000 in damages. The other legal action is still pending. In both instances, according to the report, the golfers failed to yell fore. This becomes not only a matter of courtesy but a matter of "LEGAL NECESSITY!" Here are a few tips for safer and more enjoyable golf. It is important that all members in your golfing party watch each others shots, not only to speed up play but to ensure the safety of others. If an errant shot is struck, all members in party should help to alert others of the impending danger. When waiting for the group in front, do not tee off until you are positive they are out of range. If they are playing slowly, ask to play through. If you are playing slowly, invite others to play through. Limit your search for a ball to five minutes maximum. (Less if the course is crowded and you're just practicing). By following these simple guidelines, to ensure the safety and enjoyment of others, we can all preserve this great game.
